

Love

bid me wake this morning alone,

Flashes of faces and words revolving on a misty illumined cylinder of hearts and curves and Eyes; the silent alarum clock negating the jump into winter.

You - - I never met, pulling me a last time, my nose in perfumed hair intensely straightening the back

Longingly flexing abdominal sheet.